Chicago to Liverpool in Five Days.

"The Canadian Pacific steamship line will run direct to Newfoundland, this route being nearly a thousand miles shorter than the route to are requested to preserve them, as land passengers in Chicago five days out from Liverpool, or in the same time now occupied in making the ocean voyage to New York. A railroad will be constructed from Newfoundland to connect with the Boston and Maine road, and passengers bound for the United States will be enabled to take the short sea voyage, which is destined to become the popular route to Europe and change the direction of trans-Atlantic travel." - Chicago Tribune.

SUGAR PROSPECT.

Reason for the Present Rise in Price.

Increased Consumption and Shortage World's Supply.

The returns from the trade centers of the sugar crop of 1892 are now to hand, and we can figure on the present supply. For some years it has been usual to reckon the world's sugar crop at something over 6,000,-000 tons, rather more than half of which is beet sugar, and rather less than half cane sugar. In the season of 1891-92 this figure was exceeded, the total product being about 6,285,-000 tons, of which 3,490,000 were beet sugar and 2,795,000 cane sugar. This year the crop is reckoned at 6,160,000 tons, of which 3,400,000 are beet sugar and 2,760,000 cane sugar. Thus the world goes into the season of 1893-94 with 125,000 tons less sugar on hand than it had a twelvemouth ago. The deficiency is almost wholly in Germany. They write from Magdeburg that the estimated falling off in the crop may be offset by an increase in the beet sugar crop of California, regarding

There is no article of general use whose consumption increases so fast and so uniformly with the growing of population and civilization as sugar. Primitive races use no sugar. To this day the Chinaman drinks his tea, the Arab his coffee, without sugar. But as the comforts of civilized society develop a demand arises for sweet solids and sweet liquids and the demand becomes imperative. now they recommend them in moderation because they make blood. By the admixture of sugar with fruits, the life of those valuable products of the earth is perpetuated indefinitely. The apricot of Alameda nonthly rental of $30. At this price few people pay attention to the item of sugar in their grocery bills. But it may be well to remember that the price is not like the laws of the Medes and Persians. The sugar trade has been so perfectly organized by the sugar trust that on a slight pretext the price might easily be advanced. If the returns of 1893vention will be held by the Y. W. C. | 94 should show a further reduction in the crops, it would be the easiest T. U. Novel features will be intro-duced. Miss Birdie Larkspur and thing in the world to mark up the price of sugar at any rate to the figures of five or six years ago, when housekeepers who were addicted to pies and puddings found their sugar bills a serious matter. The situation should teach Californians the duty of extending their beet acreage. Since the Spreckels took hold of the beet-sugar industry it has been a success as a business proposition. There is big money in growing beets and converting them into sugar by the new German processes, which, it is said, enable an expert refiner, buying his beets at the present market price, to turn out refined sugar at a cost of less than 4 cents a pound. There is only one sign of danger in the way, and that not likely to be formidable right away. That is the possible development of the manufacture of saccharine. Saccharine is a product of coal tar, which is far less bulky than sugar and three hundred times sweeter. When we say that it is "an inner enhydride of ortho-sulphamine benzole acid" we have explained what it is in language suited to the meanest capacity. It is a white powder, which can be used in cookng, in the arts and in medicine. It s certified to be hermless, and it has the advantage over sugar that it does not produce fat. At present there is only one factory—on the Elbe, in Germany engaged in its manufacture, but when it is successgained by the public for sidewalk fully introduced to public notice space from the old line. My wife was confined to her bed the public as antipyrine. Under and by it may become as familiar to present conditions it is important that the beet sugar interest be encouraged, either by bounties on the home product or duties on the foreign product. TWO SHOTS FIRED.

The Guards See Night Prowlers In the Palace Yard.

At 2:45 o'clock this morning a shot was heard on the Palace Walk side of the Palace yard and a few minutes later another pang was heard from the Richards street side. Captain Schlemmer, who was on duty at the Police Station, heard the shots and immediately made for the direction from whence they came. Opposite the Government building the officer met Captain Ziegler with a squad of guards coming out of the Government building yard, going to investi-

The guard stationed on the Palace
Walk gate of the Palace was interrogated by the officers. He stated that while on duty he had seen three men, one of whom carried a bundle, stealthily moving among the bushes. The guard halted them and they stopped. He called out to the cor-poral of the guard, when the men turned and ran towards the Richards street gate, when he fired a shot.

YESTERDAY'S WEDDING.

Union of Mr. John P. Parker and Miss Elizabeth Jane Dowsett.

Mr. John P. Parker and Miss Elizabeth Jane Dowsett were married yesterday morning at 11:30 o'clock, at the residence of the groom's father, Mr. S. Parker, on King street. Rev. Alex. Mackintosh of the Anglican Church solemnized the marriage before the family and a few intimate friends. The bride was given away by her father, Mr. J. I. Dowsett. She was plainly but becomingly attired in a dress of plain white silk trimmed with lace, and by her side hung a string of artificial flowers. She wore the usual veil. Prince Kalanianaole acted as best man and Miss Helen Parker as bridesmaid. After the marriage ceremony had been concluded, the party retired to a sumptuously laid out luau. Two long tables were set, at which over fifty invited guests were seated. The Hawaiian Quintet was in attendance, playing the wedding march at the ceremony, also giving vocal and instrumental selec-
